Aerospace giant Airbus will hold a supplier summit in Columbus Nov. 15.

The event is designed to help Ohio companies learn more about opportunities to work within the Airbus Americas supply chain. It will be held at the Fawcett Center at The Ohio State University.

Airbus procurement executives, together with procurement representatives from Tier 1 and Tier 2 suppliers, will be available to explain how to contract with Airbus and its subcontractors.

The company bought about $4 billion in supplies from Ohio companies last year.

This marks the third supplier summit for Airbus. In April, the company held the event at the National Composite Center in Kettering.

Airbus' European-based parent company, EADS, generated more than 42 billion euros in revenue last year.
